

Name _____

The Comma 2

Directions: Read the paragraph and add any needed commas.

The Missing Puppy

Wendy had begged her parents for a new puppy for months. She didn't really think she would get one but she just couldn't give up hope. When her birthday finally arrived she saw a huge box with holes in the top of it sitting beside her other presents. Anticipating that it was a new puppy she begged to open the presents before the cake and ice cream. After much begging Wendy's mother agreed to let her open just one present. Wendy of course chose the big box. To her parents' surprise the box was empty when she opened it. Wendy thought they were playing a mean trick on her so she started to cry. She couldn't believe they would do this to her. Hearing laughter in the background Wendy stopped crying to see what was happening. Jimmy her older brother was standing in the doorway with a wiggly excited puppy in his arms. She ran to him and got her new puppy. Jimmy explained that he had taken the puppy out to give it some water. Since he thought she would open her presents last he didn't think anybody would miss the puppy while he was gone. Seeing how sorry her brother was for messing up her surprise Wendy gave him a hug and told him not to be upset. If she had not begged to open the presents early this never would have happened so it was just as much her fault as his. Wendy of course was just happy that she had received the best present ever a new puppy.

(19 missing commas)

Name _____

The Comma<sub>2</sub>

Directions: Read the paragraph and add any needed commas.

The Missing Puppy

Wendy had begged her parents for a new puppy for months. She didn't really think she would get one, but she just couldn't give up hope. When her birthday finally arrived, she saw a huge box with holes in the top of it sitting beside her other presents. Anticipating that it was a new puppy, she begged to open the presents before the cake and ice cream. After much begging, Wendy's mother agreed to let her open just one present. Wendy, of course, chose the big box. To her parents' surprise, the box was empty when she opened it. Wendy thought they were playing a mean trick on her, so she started to cry. She couldn't believe they would do this to her. Hearing laughter in the background, Wendy stopped crying to see what was happening. Jimmy, her older brother, was standing in the doorway with a wiggly, excited puppy in his arms. She ran to him and got her new puppy. Jimmy explained that he had taken the puppy out to give it some water. Since he thought she would open her presents last, he didn't think anybody would miss the puppy while he was gone. Seeing how sorry her brother was for messing up her surprise, Wendy gave him a hug and told him not to be upset. If she had not begged to open the presents early, this never would have happened, so it was just as much her fault as his. Wendy, of course, was just happy that she had received the best present ever, a new puppy.

(19 missing commas)

