

A Lost Boy

Nick watched a movie all afternoon. The movie was long but he liked it a lot. It was about people moving to the west in the old days. One boy left the wagon train and got lost. He was scared. He missed his family.

After a night sleeping outside, the boy met some Native Americans out hunting. They took him to their camp.

They fed him. They tried to find the wagon train. The wagons had left.

The Native American people raised him. They were good to him. They taught him their language and how to hunt. When he grew up he found his parents again. He was happy to see them, but he lived with the Native Americans for the rest of his life.
